

Meet Rani...

hello!

Thank you so much for taking the time to learn more about me as a potential adoptive parent for your child. I sincerely admire your courage in considering adoption.

I have wanted a family for as long as I can remember. I always envisioned myself raising a couple of children and providing a loving home. I am not able to have children, and I am extremely grateful that my path to motherhood is through adoption.

I am excited about the possibility of welcoming a child into my life and building my family. They will be so loved and appreciated!

I hope you can get to know me a little bit through my profile book and see if you can envision your child in my family and home that is full of love, laughter, fun, and support.

My Family

I have a very close-knit family. In fact, we all live on the same street in the town where I grew up!

My parents, Patty and Eric, are wonderful grandparents and I am very fortunate because they will be caring for my child after I return to work.

I have one brother, Jesse, who is married. He and his wife Tara have two daughters, who I ADORE! We are all a big part of each others lives and love doing things together.

I am also close with my Aunt Nancy, who lives on our street too! We all visit often and have dinner together every Sunday.

They CANNOT WAIT to welcome a new little one into our family!

I am super close with my two nieces, Harper and Gracie.

They live right across the street from me, so I spend lots of time with them and am involved in a lot of their activities.

I love taking them to the park and other fun places, and having them over for sleep overs and movie nights!

I admit it... I spoil them!!

They are SO excited to become big cousins and help take care of a new baby cousin!

TOP 10 Reasons we think Aunt Rani will be a good mom:

1. She buys us lots of stuff
2. She always bakes with us
3. She lets us watch TV
4. She likes sleepovers
5. She paints our nails & does our makeup
6. She tells us secrets
7. She lets us do fun things
8. She doesn't hurt us when she brushes our hair
9. She takes us places
10. She loves us very much!

My family gets together for every holiday and we take turns hosting, so Easter is always at my house.

We all spend Christmas eve at my parents. I make homemade ravioli for dinner, which is a family recipe I learned from my Italian grandparents and aunts.

Christmas day, the kids open gifts and we all have a big breakfast at my house. We also love to bake and eat lots of Christmas cookies!

Some of our favorite summertime traditions are having family picnics, making s'mores by the fire and going to parades in town!

I am excited to share these traditions - and make new ones - with my child!

My Home & Neighborhood

I live in a one-story brick home that I remodeled from top to bottom. I had fun creating an inviting home for my new family. :)

I live in the same neighborhood where I grew up. My house was built by my great aunt and uncle, where I spent a lot of time with my aunts learning how to make cookies. And now I make the same cookies in my kitchen!

We live right next to the woods where we love to go for walks and see deer and other wildlife!

My town is small and close-knit. We have good schools and great youth sports programs. I even coach little league. I can't think of a better place to raise a family!

I have a strong support group of friends. They are always there for me no matter what.

We love getting together for dinner or to hang out, including with their kids. We also go on adventures to travel and see new places.

As they've had kids of their own, I've always become an honorary aunt to their kids, always visiting them and celebrating special events with them.

My Friends

My grandfather was a huge part of my life growing up.

He taught me the state capitals, the continents, the great lakes, how to garden, how to cook, and how to play cards.

But most importantly, he taught me the importance of family. This shaped me into who I am today.

And I look forward to building a family of my own to share and pass down to them what matters most.

Important to me
