

Aaron & Megan

Hello

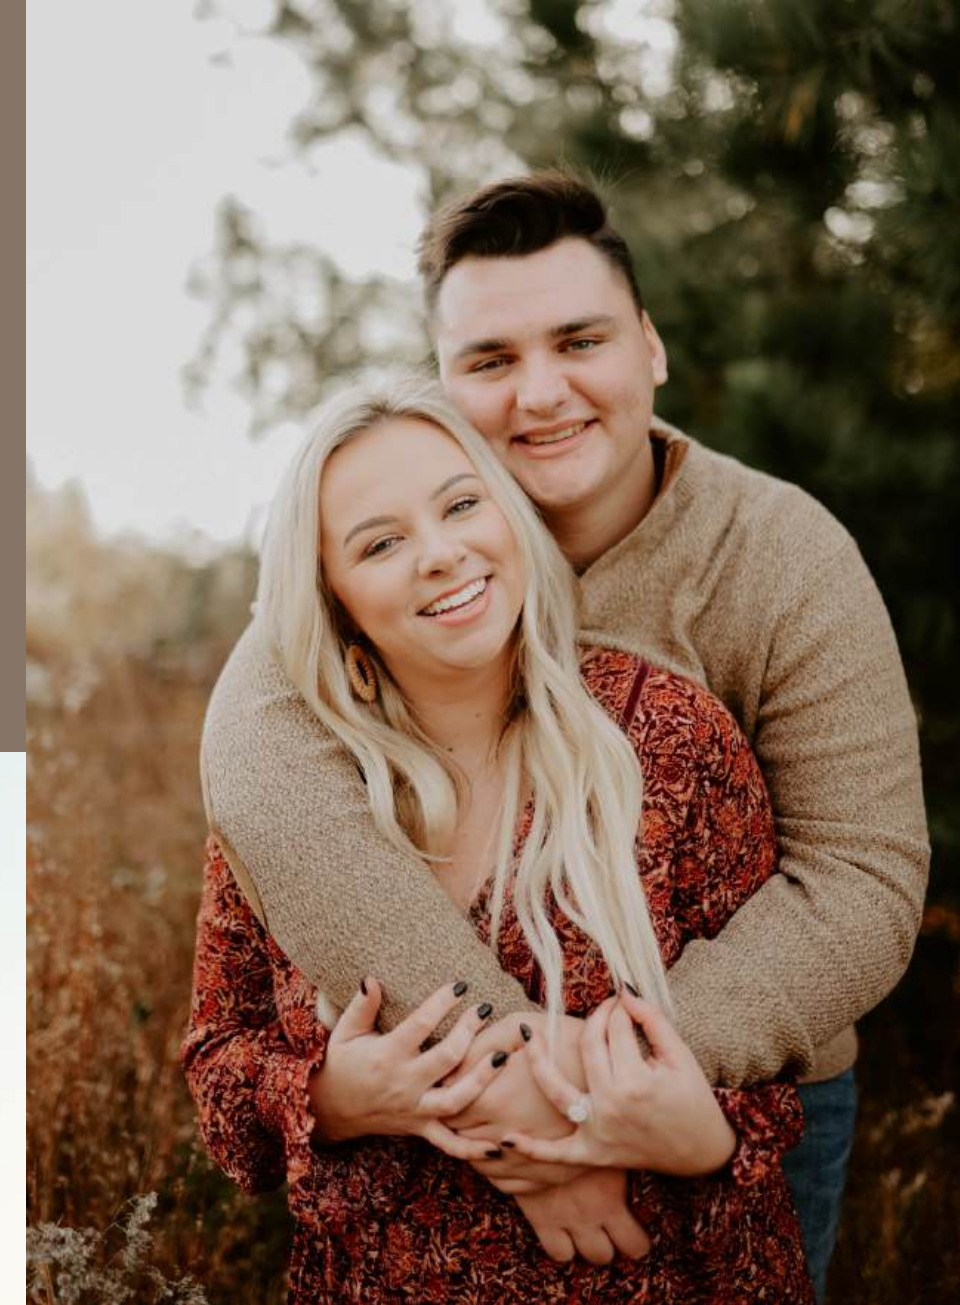

We are so excited to be starting this journey of adding another little one to our family. We have always had a heart for adoption, and it has been a calling for our lives. As a birth mother, we know this is a huge step for you. To say we are in awe of your courage and strength you have during this time is an understatement. We cannot thank you enough for considering us. Since Aaron and I have been together, we have continuously prayed for this child. We hope they will always know how loved and wanted they are. We will always strive to be the most encouraging, supportive, joyful, and loving parents to our future child. With that being said, Aaron and I want to thank you so much for taking the time to read our profile. Our hope is that it will give you a little glimpse into our lives and show you the love that we have to share with a child.

Our Story

Aaron and I met in 2019 through some of our best friends. Our first date was at Dunkin' Donuts for coffee. After that evening, I knew then we had something very special. We sat for hours talking and sharing our life stories. Fast forward to the next year when Aaron proposed to me with all of our closest family and friends to witness and share this special moment with. As we just celebrated our five year wedding anniversary, I cannot help but to reflect on what this time together has brought us. Some of the highlights being, our honeymoon trip to the Dominican Republic, our annual beach trips, moving into our first home together, and most of all, welcoming our first son in 2024. During our five years of marriage, we have of course endured hardships, but we try and always remain positive and thankful during the hard seasons, because we know this too shall pass.

Hi, I'm Megan

I am from a smaller family which can make family time more intimate. There is nothing I love more than getting to spend time with my nieces and nephews, they make my life so much brighter just by being in it. In my free time, you can usually find me enjoying a cup of coffee and a good book. A fun fact is my dream to own my own coffee shop some day. As I have gotten older, I have come to love reading it has easily become one of my hobbies and something I can do to decompress after a long day. The fall months are my favorite time of year, the cooler weather, the leaves falling, but most of all, the holidays & family events. There are many traditions that take place during this time of year as well which I just love. It makes me so excited to think about our children getting to enjoy them with us and to start making our own traditions as a family.

A note from Aaron

Megan is my favorite person in the whole world. Ever since we met in 2019, I cannot stand to be apart from her. She is full of happiness and love. Megan is truly the perfect example of a person with a contagious smile. Her strong faith anchors her when life throws her a curve ball and always keeps me grounded. She supports me in everything I do and helps me in more ways than I can list. She puts our family and friends first in life and is always there when someone needs her. She is such a natural when it comes to children and has always been such a nurturer. Which is what makes Megan an amazing mother. She will love our child with her whole heart and make sure they never forget they are SO important to us.

Hi, I'm Aaron

I am from a large family as I have two brothers and three sisters. There is not ever a dull or quiet moment during our family time. One thing we have always done to spend quality time with each other is to have family game night. Our nights together are something I will never forget and will implement with our kids in the years to come. My favorite tradition growing up was on Christmas day, we would wake up, open presents, spend the day together, and in the evenings we would all go to Waffle House and then, go to the movie theatre that night. A couple of my hobbies are playing golf and riding four wheelers. My love for fourwheelers started very early on at the young age of three when I got my first one as a Christmas gift. I have had some type of “toy” (as Megan likes to call them) ever since then. It could be a Saturday filled riding with friends or tinkering with them after a long work day to get my mind off of things. I hope that one day I can share this love with my own children and will take interest in it like me.

A note from Megan

There are so many great things that makes Aaron who he is, but one of my most favorite attributes is his heart. Anyone who knows him know that he loves big, and he does it well. He can light up any room he walks into with his big smile. Being with him over the years and watching him grow into the man he is today, makes me the proudest wife. One of the greatest gifts has been watching Aaron become a dad. The way he loves our baby so deeply and joyfully shows the kind of father he is. I cannot wait to watch another child experience that same incredible love from him.

Our family

This is our family. It is big, it is blended, and can sometimes be a bit much, but we would not trade these people for anything in the world. It is the biggest blessing to have each and every one of them in our lives. They are our supporters, our encouragers, and most of all our prayer warriors. We would not be where we are today if it was not for them. When we gave the news that we were adopting again, we received nothing but joy and encouragement. Our family has covered us in many prayers for our future children, no matter how they are brought into this world. They are already so loved, by SO many. We cannot thank God enough for our family.

Our little boy

Our sweet boy was born in summer of 2024. Since then our lives have been immensely changed. He has the biggest smile, the best personality and funniest sense of humor. He loves nothing more than playing outside, going for rides, & checking on his “moo moo’s”. He loves mama & dada big, but we know that without a shadow of doubt that he will make the best big brother.

Our Home

Welcome to our home. It is a very spacious three bedroom, white farmhouse tucked away in a small town. We live on our families farmland, where we are less than a mile away from most of our relatives. We have a huge fenced in yard that will be perfect for our children to run around and play. There is a great amount of distance between our house and our neighbors, so it tends to be very quiet around here. There are so many things that we absolutely adore about our house, one of them being our front and back porches where we can sit on the rocking chairs and enjoy a cup of coffee, while doing our devotion or watching the sunrise. It is a gentle reminder of how blessed we are for this house and just how much we love it. Another thing that we love about our home is our dining room table that seats eight people. At first we thought it was crazy to have that big of a table, but it has slowly became a favorite of ours, so we can host family and friends for dinner or a game night. This house has been the perfect beginner house for us. It has just the right amount of space to bring our child home to and we can not wait to raise our kids here and make many memories. This place will always hold a special place in my heart, and we hope our children will love and enjoy it as much as we do.

THANK YOU

There are not enough words to describe how grateful we are for you. We pray that you will have the strength and a peace of mind in whatever decision you come to make. We do not know the trials you are facing, but we are sure that they are not easy. We just hope that you know you are strong, you are brave, and you are courageous. If you chose to make an adoption plan with us, know that we will respect you and support you every step of the way.

Our promise to you is that we will give this child a stable, loving, and supportive home to grow up in. We promise to raise this child to know and love God. We will raise them to know where they came from and to deeply appreciate the love and sacrifice you made during this time. Lastly, Aaron and I promise to devote our lives to showing them an unconditional love that we hope they never forget.
